James Arthur Tuttle : Forge Practice: by John Lord Bacon 1904 (100 Year Books) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Forge Practice: by John Lord Bacon 1904 (100 Year Books):

I received my copy from my Grandfather Arthur Tuttle. He was a blacksmith at the beginning of the 20th century most likely bought it through a mail-order company like Sears and Roebuck. This is a must have book originally published in 1904 by John Lord Bacon. The basics of blacksmithing hasn't changed over the years and I have seen beginners and masters alike at Hammer-ins and Demonstrations perform these very things listed and discussed here in this book. I have kept the book as original as I could, correcting the font and character errors but leaving the word choice of the day.
