Kitty Harmon, Christine Stickler : Wild with a Glue Gun: Getting Together with Crafty Friends before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Wild with a Glue Gun: Getting Together with Crafty Friends:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. tacky and title misleading By tash* this is not a book on glue gun projects- the title is misleading* most of the projects are not very original - except for a couple of things- the copper tape frames, tin box art- but these projects are more fun for kids making bitsy things for their friends* the projects are not well explained- if you want step by step instructions with photos etc- this doesnt have that at all.. its a photo of final project with sometimes very general instructions on how to do them .. which is not good for young people despite the projects being very kiddy..* where are those glue gun projects??? .. even the adhesive/product descriptions arent good.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Fun little mystery read. By CustomerCute book for a rainy weekend. Plot was engaging with a fun, dark comedy edge.2 of 14 people found the following review helpful. JUNK! By Jennifer Whiddon If you are interested in making junk then this is the book for you. Kids could have created better items than this. I cannot believe someone thought this would make a great book. Keep your money. Or buy it and use the paper to create even more junk.

"Wild with a Glue Gun" offers an array of craft projects, while showing craft clubs and other small groups how to foster an atmosphere of creative sharing. Various craft group members offer their favourite projects, suitable for all skill levels, and easily completed in a short amount of time.

"The beauty of being part of a craft club is that you will make time in your life, on a regular basis, for making things. It will spur you to get those unfinished projects out of the drawer. Your friends will admire what you're doing and you'll want to do more. It seems that the more creative you are, the more creative you'll want to be. Our book will encourage you down that path." About the Author Kitty Harman, principal of Tributary Books, started a craft group with friends called Women Who Run with Glue Guns. Christine Stickler, head of several programs that promote creativity in young people, convenes with Women Who Do Things with Their Hands. They and the members of their respective craft groups all live in Seattle, WA.
